Putzel, James.

Peace-building

Maass, Citha D.
Summary: “three years after the war in Afghanistan ended in late 2001. First attempts can be seen by Afghan and international organizations to document past human rights abuses, consult the Afghan people on how to make the perpetrators accountable, and build capacities in peace-building. This is an encouraging sign. However, the people in general are still too reluctant to speak about their suffering during the war…”—(p. 3).
